Participation of our members in the opening of the Campaign for the prevention of violence against women in Ramat Hasharon. The Campaign entitled "If a red light comes on it's time to go", included a photography exhibition in the main avenue of the city, expressing different situations of danger and violence. The exhibition is the result of a cooperation between the family of a young women murdered six months ago by her boyfriend, the municipality and the women's council of Ramat Hasharon.

During this period we have initiated cooperation with a foster care service designated to children and youngsters at high risk, aged 8 to 18, as well as a hostel for young girls, aged 13 to 18, who suffered from domestic violence and were removed from home by the court. We contributed new clothes and accessories to the girls at the hostel. We provided computer help through our members to the women's shelter in Herzelyia and the foster care home.
